At 3100 sq feet, our house in the Coto de Caza community is not one of the larger ones, fairly average I suppose with 5 bedrooms and 4 baths, and the 75 gallon storage tank water heater installed since the place was new worked fine for most of the year. However a couple of times a year, Thanksgiving in particular, it was pushed to its limits with all guest bedrooms full and we were hesitant to use the spa tub (one of our few indulgences) which really takes a lot of water to fill. Rather than installing a second tank to cope with high seasonal demand, our plumber suggested changing out to an Eternal. The alternative, a second tank in the garage, would have been a bit of a squeeze anyway.

We did have to upsize our gas line, but the install was a breeze and we've been told we will save on our gas bill which has got to be a good thing.
